WATSON CLINIC

Urogynecology and Reconstructive Pelvic Surgery

There are many types of pelvic floor dysfunction that may contribute to incontinence and bladder health concerns such as urinary stress incontinence, overactive bladder, incomplete bladder emptying, recurrent urinary tract infections, fecal incontinence, pelvic organ prolapse, fistulae, painful bladder syndrome/interstitial cystitis and painful intercourse.

Watson Clinic's Division of Urogynecology and Reconstructive Pelvic Surgery offers a vast array of services designed to restore a patient's sense of relief and well-being. Treatment plans are designed based upon the severity of your condition, and range from simple diet modifications to major pelvic reconstructive surgery.

Treatment options may include bladder BOTOX® injections, bladder installations, catheterization, incontinence and prolapse surgery, interstim therapy/sacral neuromodulation, lifestyle changes, medical management, pelvic floor rehabilitation/physical therapy, percutaneous tibial nerve stimulation, pessary management and vaginal weight training.

Obstetrics & Gynecology Services

Dr. Tarek Garas is a member of Watson Clinic's OB-GYN department, one of the largest and most experienced women's health providers in the area. Board-certified in both Obstetrics & Gynecology and Urogynecology and Reconstructive Pelvic Surgery, Dr. Garas offers a complete roster of comprehensive services, including routine gynecologic care, infertility counseling, state-of-the-art ultrasound imagery, high-risk pregnancy care, complex surgical robotic procedures and treatments for urinary and fecal incontinence, pelvic organ prolapse, pelvic pain and sexual dysfunction.

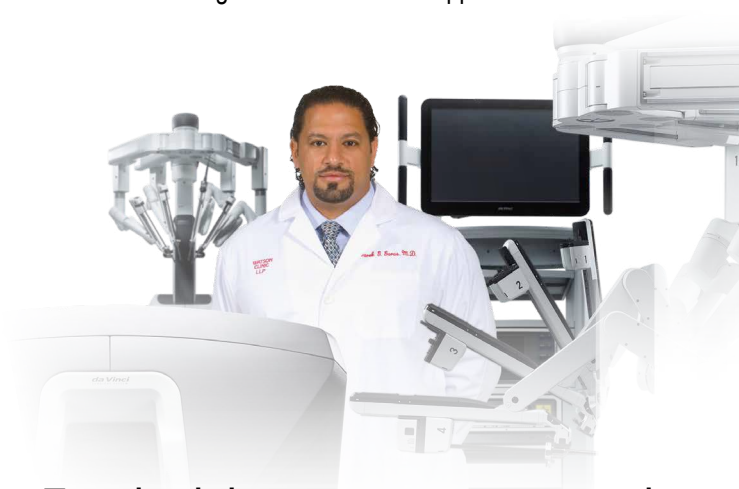

For expectant parents-to-be, Dr. Garas provides all the services needed to ensure a healthy pregnancy and delivery process, and collaborates closely with each additional member of Watson Clinic's OB team to establish a continuity of care regardless of when you arrive at the hospital for your delivery.

Robotic Surgery

One of the most significant surgical advancements of recent years, robotic technology allows surgeons to perform complex procedures with greater pinpoint accuracy than ever before, and results in smaller incisions, less blood loss and a significantly improved recovery time.

Dr. Garas offers robotic options for hysterectomy, treatment of endometriosis and pelvic pain, pelvic reconstruction, fibroid treatment and other benign gynecologic conditions.

In addition, Dr. Garas uses robotic surgery for pelvic prolapse procedures, affording patients an improved outcome without the use of transvaginal mesh or other supportive devices.
